STOCKTON AND ALLEGIANT AIR, WHAT A PAIR!

(Stockton, Calif.) —What happens in Vegas may stay in Vegas, but over the last year it has started in Stockton, Calif. as Allegiant Air, LLC, marks the one-year anniversary of nonstop, jet-service to Las Vegas, Nev.

The Las Vegas-based airline inaugurated service from Stockton Metropolitan Airport to McCarran International Airport (Las Vegas) June 16, 2006.

"We are very pleased with the performance of the San Joaquin Valley market over the last year," said Maurice J. Gallagher, the airline's president and CEO. "We look forward to a continued successful relationship between Allegiant, Stockton Metropolitan Airport, the local communities, travel agents and all of our customers."

Allegiant Air will complete its first year of service achieving several milestones. Since June 16, 2006, Allegiant has carried more than 41,000 customers to and from Las Vegas. Since initiating service, Allegiant has lowered the average fare paid by Stockton customers more than 30 percent. The low-cost airline has saved customers more than $1 million by bringing everyday low-fares to the San Joaquin Valley.

"I am pleased to see Allegiant's one-year anniversary come around," said Barry Rondinella, Stockton Metropolitan Airport Director. "Since its launch last year, the community has demonstrated its excitement and support for local air travel. We look forward to adding additional destinations in response to the community's growing travel needs. Happy Birthday Allegiant!"
